HONGKONG, JULY 17TH, 1896.

In a recently published minute the Colonial Governor writes:—"The only thing we can do is to keep our provisions clean and in good order, and now is our opportunity to make all the necessary arrangements and to specially enforce them. Certainly most things will not be approved by the Chinese that are absolutely necessary, and one is glad to hear of the necessity of this, but the question is—are they to rule us or we them? To this question there can be but one answer. This is a British Colony and must be ruled according to British ideas of what is right and necessary. But the main principle in the act of ruling is to avoid the exclusion of hostility on the part of the ruled and to secure their confidence and co-operation.

The indiscriminate application of force is as ineffective in the ruling of men as in the controlling of animals. The problem before the Government at the present time, then, is how to introduce the necessary sanitary reforms without alarming and antagonizing
